WAYWARD GIRLS

In Police Court Monday-Jail Sentence Suspended and Both Put on

Two girls, one said to be twenty-one and the other eighteen, were be-fore the police court Monday morning on the charge of lascivious carriage. The two girls were arrested late Saturday night in a house on Bank street in company with three men. Complaint had been previously made of their actions in the vicinity. Gladys Southwick, whose mother lives on the Eagleville road, was reeased from the House of the Good Shepherd in Hartford the first of last December. Her mother had thought she could keep te girl in good ways if she had her at home. The other girl was Alexina Couchon, who had been before the court on three other occasions on similar chargesc and had also been an inmate of the House of the Good Shepherd. In both cases, the court imposed a thirty-day jail sentence, which was suspended and the girls were put in charge of the probation officer.
